Intrinsic Motivation at Work Kenneth Wayne Thomas, 2000 Intrinsic Motivation at Work marks a major advance on the topic of work motivation one based on an understanding of the changing requirements of today's workplace and the limitations of older motivational models Written in an engaging accessible style yet grounded in solid academic research the book is divided into three parts Part One assesses older models of work motivation and why they need an overhaul Part Two explains the nature of the new work and the importance of reintroducing a feeling of purpose and self management Part Three presents in depth the four intrinsic rewards that make work energizing and compelling a sense of meaningfulness a sense of choice a sense of competence or quality and a sense of progress and how to create them

Motivation in Work Organizations Edward E. Lawler (III.), Edward E. Lawler, 1973 For more than twenty years Edward E Lawler III has had worldwide influence in the areas of management and organization design This landmark book one of the most cited volumes on the topic of motivation in the workplace defines Lawler's basic philosophy in order to have effective organizations we must understand how to motivate and encourage effective individual performance Time tested theories have been the basis for nearly all of Lawler's subsequent work in the areas of pay and reward systems employee involvement organization design and organizational change In his new introduction to this classic edition he shows how his original emphasis on work design and reward systems is especially relevant to the current emphasis on creating high performance work organizations through new organization design and management approaches Lawler's theories continue to help us understand the world around us today forming the basis for many successful managerial practices found in today's workplace and continue to prove that no matter what organization design or approach is used it cannot succeed if it fails to motivate employees to perform well

The Motivation to Work Frederick Herzberg, Bernard Mausner, Barbara Bloch Snyderman, 2011-12-31 Quality work that fosters job satisfaction and health enjoys top priority in industry all over the world This was not always so Until recently analysis of job attitudes focused primarily on human relations problems within organizations While American industry was trying to solve the unsolvable problem of avoiding interpersonal dissatisfaction problems with the potential for solution such as training and quality production were ignored When first published The Motivation to Work challenged the received wisdom by showing that worker fulfillment came from achievement and growth within the job itself In his new introduction Herzberg examines thirty years of motivational research in job related areas Based on workers accounts of real events that have made them feel good or bad on the job the findings of Herzberg and his colleagues have stimulated research and controversy that continue to the present day The authors surprisingly found that while a poor work environment generated discontent improved conditions seldom brought about improved attitudes Instead satisfaction came most often from factors intrinsic to work achievements job recognition and work that was challenging interesting and responsible The evidence marshaled by this volume called into question many previous assumptions about job satisfaction and worker motivation Feelings about intrinsic and extrinsic factors could not be validly averaged on a single scale of measurement Motivation and performance are not merely dependent upon environmental needs and external rewards Frederick Herzberg and his staff based their motivation hygiene theory on a variety of human needs and applied it to a strategy of job enrichment that has widely influenced motivation and job design strategies Motivation to Work is a landmark volume that is of enduring interest to sociologists psychologists labor studies specialists and organization analysts

The Effects of Intrinsic Motivation and Extrinsic Incentives on Employee Performance Jan U., 2021-07-21 Bachelor Thesis from the year 2016 in the subject Leadership and Human Resources Employee Motivation Employee Satisfaction grade 1 3 University of Mannheim language English abstract The motivation for this work is a result of several factors At first the topics of motivation and work performance represent core areas in the fields of management and leadership with essential theoretical and practical implications Second various studies have been undertaken in order to examine the direct effects of motivation on work performance showing the high relevance of this issue For example the work of Jenkins Mitra Gupta and Shaw 1998 verifies a positive link between extrinsic motivation and work performance Such performance improvements may be essential for companies trying to bet the competition However comparable studies examining the effects of intrinsic motivation on work performance tend to be rare Thus another reason for this present thesis is to close this substantial research gap The topic of motivation has been widely studied from various researchers in several areas It represents an essential part in multiple research fields including the ones of management and psychology Rani and Lenka define motivation as a process that elicits controls and sustains certain behaviors Thus motivated employees are activated to engage in a certain behaviour in an energized way whereas unmotivated employees may not have any incentive to act Ilardi Leone Kasser and Ryan 1993 validate a positive relation between high levels of motivation and positive work outcomes such as job satisfaction or well being The importance of motivation becomes clear in light of the recent Gallup study which states that unmotivated workers lead to substantial losses for businesses Until now a significant number of studies have focused on the effects of motivation on well being or job satisfaction However this thesis has a slightly different focus It examines the effects of motivation on work performance of employees based on the self determination theory SDT from Deci and Ryan 1985 Therefore it distinguishes between two types of motivation namely intrinsic and extrinsic motivation which will be defined later This distinction allows to separately examine the effects of intrinsic and extrinsic motivation on work performance as well as the interaction of those two variables and the joint impact of both motivational constructs on work performance
