for individuals and nations has been to make sense of the Cold War past without recourse to the obsolete frameworks of a dichotomous world. The editors of Seeking Meaning Seeking Justice in the Post Cold War World Judith Keene and Elizabeth Rezniewski have brought together contributions that address the diverse modes by which the Cold War is being assessed with a major focus on countries on the periphery of the Cold War confrontation. These approaches include developments in historiography as new intellectual and cultural frames are applied to old debates. Authors also consider the universal principles and moral discourses including that of human rights on which judgements have been based and judicial processes instigated and the forms of memorialisation that have sought to come to terms and perhaps achieve reconciliation with a Cold War past. Contributors are Ann Curthoys, Philip Deery, Katherine Hite, Michael Humphrey, Su-kyong Hwang, Perry Johansson, Judith Keene, Betty O'Neill, Peter Read, Elizabeth Rezniewski, Estela Valverde, Adrian Vickers, and Marivic Wyndham.

Religion Seeking Justice and Peace (Penerbit USM) Chandra Muzaffar, 2010. Religion Seeking Justice and Peace not only highlights the values that the different religions share in their pursuit of justice and peace but also provides concrete examples of how individuals and institutions from different religious backgrounds have worked for justice and peace throughout history. The book also exposes the danger of religious extremism, religious exclusivism, and other such negative traits to the struggle for justice and peace. It takes cognisance of the impact of the larger environment upon religious ideals and at the same time makes a plea for the application of universal values and principles embodied in the various religions to politics, economics, culture, and society. This is particularly important, some of the contributors argue, at a time like this when humanity is confronted with multiple global crises.

Muslim Women Seeking Power, Muslim Youth Seeking Justice Mahmoud Abubaker, Christopher Adam-Bagley, 2019-06-20. This volume explores the two themes of equity in employment for Muslim women and the identity and aspirations of Muslim youth in an age of Islamophobia in Western countries through conceptual and empirical studies of employment discrimination and alienation in the UK and the Netherlands. To these accounts are added a worldwide perspective on how women and especially ethnic minority and Muslim women experience and try to overcome ethno-religious discrimination in entry to employment. The themes of Muslim women and youth struggling to survive are illustrated by accounts of teachers from Gaza who are providing alternative families for children traumatised and orphaned through Israeli attacks. The idea of peaceful resistance and Islamic patience in the face of persecution is developed throughout the book and applied in a variety of settings.

Where did the fabled riches of the Congo go and what happened to all the capital accumulated by colonial history Why is Zaire still underdeveloped while the Belgian economy now thrives Tapping many and varied sources this book challenges dominant historiographical assumptions and practice while analysing the past and present impact of Belgian joint stock companies on the Zairean economy The author an academic and specialist on African historiography and methodology argues that colonialism paved the way for the triumphant return of other colonizers the multinational corporations under the hegemony of the WorldBank and the International Monetary Fund with structural adjustment replacing pacification The author s contention is that his investigation of the Zairean economic history overturns colonial assumptions rooting its analyses in the people s own history raising questions both about the colonial past but also about the framework underlying previous analyses
