Abstract

The bibliography presented here aims to provide guide to research on the Englishes of the MENA region. It covers a range of studies published in original journal articles, books, and other research publications between 2010 and 2020 (10 years), with a focus on major works published internationally. This list complements the work of Mahboob (2013), and of Hillman, Selvi and Yazan (2020) in this special issue. Our hope is that this bibliography will provide an up-to-date and useful guide to current research on Englishes in the MENA region.

1 | THE RESEARCH BIBLIOGRAPHY

This research bibliography comprises a listing of major research articles, books, and other research outputs that were published between 2010 and 2020. In some ways, it builds on Mahboob's (2013) discussion of 'Middle Eastern Englishes situated in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia', although the bibliography presented here has a much wider frame of reference. The work by Hillman, Selvi, and Yazan (2020), in this special issue) mapping out the body of WE literature pertinent to this region during the last two decades (2000–2019) is also included in this bibliography. While the focus of Hillman et al. (2020) is mainly on peer-reviewed articles appearing in such journals as World Englishes, English Today, and Asian Englishes, the bibliography below has set out to survey an even wider range of publications, although even here we would not claim to be totally comprehensive. For clarity and ease of reference, the bibliography has been presented in the form of specific sections dealing with such topics as 'Books', 'books chapters', 'Scholarly theses', 'Applied linguistics', 'Cultural studies, gender studies, and Islam', 'Educational studies', 'Discourse, pragmatics, and corpus studies', and so on. The categories in this bibliography are intended to be fairly transparent. In the first section, 'Books', 'Books chapters', and 'scholarly theses,' we have attempted to include major book-length books, book chapters, and scholarly theses that address MENA-situated WE. We would also like to acknowledge that there can be an overlap of some work in different categories where they can be appropriately placed in more than one category. For instance, the 'Applied linguistics' section may contain work that can be also listed in 'Features and varieties of English' or 'Education issues' category. Unsurprisingly perhaps, there is some overlap between categories, so that the 'Applied language studies' sections lists publications from the MENA region that are also relevant to the 'Educational issues' section, although we would argue that such overlaps are inevitable in a bibliography of this kind. Despite its shortcomings, however, it is our
