Abstract. The relevance of the topic is determined by the current state of political economy as a subject for study. Economic life is primarily a field of production relations, the laws of which determine the nature and direction of its development. The task is to show that political economy studies the economic processes that create a single material life process of society. The main methods of research are the study of archival materials, methods of comparative analysis, deduction, theoretical and methodological approaches. The aim of the work is a comprehensive study of such a phenomenon as political economy and its components: production relations, productive forces. Results of the study. In the context of global geopolitical confrontation, many modern scientists and public figures see in the development of production relations a mechanism for the social and state development of Russia. The analysis of scientific researches of the existing economic system devoted to productive forces, production relations, development of material and technical base, etc. is given.

1 Introduction

The changes occurring in society present political economy with great and demanding tasks. Political economy is entering a new phase in its development. It must lay effective theoretical foundations for the improvement of production relations and the renewal of the entire economic life of our society. In political economy its implementation must begin with definitions and a general concept of the subject.

The definition of political economy as a science which studies social-production relations at various stages of the historical development of society has been established in scientific and academic literature. It is noted that production relations are studied in relationship to the productive forces. The materialistic understanding of history is based on the idea of the historical process of development of socio-economic formations. This idea was elaborated by Marx "by singling out from different areas of social life the field of economic, by singling out from all relations - relations of production, as basic, initial, determining all other relations". [5]

In his preface to "Capital", K. Marx wrote: "The subject of the present work is the capitalist mode of production and the relations of production and exchange corresponding to it." [5] It follows from this that political economy studies a historically determined social mode of production.
