Mercer Chronometers Tony Mercer,2003 The Rise and Decline of England's Watchmaking Industry,

1550-1930 Alun C. Davies,2022-04-11 This survey of the rise and decline of English watchmaking fills a gap in the historiography of British industry Clerkenwell in London was supplied with rough movements from Prescot 200 miles away in Lancashire Smaller watchmaking hubs later emerged in Coventry Liverpool and Birmingham The English industry led European watchmaking in the late eighteenth century in output and its lucrative export markets extended to the Ottoman Empire and China It also made marine chronometers the most complex of hand crafted pre industrial mechanisms crucially important to the later hegemony of Britain s navy and merchant marine Although Britain was the workshop of the world its watchmaking industry declined Why First because cheap Swiss watches were smuggled into British markets Later in the era of Free Trade they were joined by machine made watches from factories in America enabled by the successful application to watch production of the American system in Waltham Massachusetts after 1858 The Swiss watch industry adapted itself appropriately expanded and reasserted its lead in the world s markets English watchmaking did not its trajectory foreshadowed and was later followed by other once prominent British industries Clerkenwell retained its pre industrial production methods Other modernization attempts in Britain had limited success or failed Marine Chronometers at

Greenwich Jonathan Betts,2018-01-03 The Marine Chronometers at Greenwich is the fifth and largest of the distinguished series of catalogues of instruments in the collections of the National Maritime Museum Housed at the Royal Observatory Greenwich the home of time and the Prime Meridian of the world this extraordinary collection which includes the celebrated marine timekeepers by John Harrison 1693 1776 is generally considered to be the finest of its kind in existence The book is however much more than just a catalogue and includes an accessible and engaging history of the chronometer revealing why these instruments were important in our scientific and cultural history and explaining in simple terms how they worked and were used A comprehensive Glossary and Bibliography are included to ensure any technicalities are explained and that the reader has suggestions for useful further reading Over 480 photographs and illustrations including many fine macro photographs and line drawings illustrate the jewel like beauty of the chronometer s construction and explain the function and subtleties of its mechanism A chapter on How the Chronometer was Made describes the fine sub division of labour used to create these special machines from bare metal right up to delivery on board ship and brief biographies of the makers tell the human story behind this important nineteenth century industry Another chapter The Evolution of the Chronometer aimed at collectors historians and curators provides clearly structured information on assessing and dating the chronometer something many find difficult And for the dedicated specialist there is extensive tabulated data on the technical structure of this important collection a unique resource for future research Clockmaking in England and Wales in the Twentieth Century John Glanville,2015-03-23 Over a decade John Glanville and Bill Wolmuth undertook an important horological project for the British Museum This involved establishing a representative collection for the Museum of twentieth century domestic mechanical clocks made in England and Wales using industrialized manufacturing methods This remarkable book is the culmination of their efforts Wide ranging in its coverage it will be a key reference tool for horologists horological students collectors and antiques and clock dealers It provides a comprehensive history of each significant manufacturer including the principal people involved and covers the various mechanical clock movements that were produced Previously unpublished research about the manufacturers the clocks they made and the dates when they were manufactured is presented Finally this book informs readers how they can identify and date almost all of the clocks they are likely to encounter This detailed and meticulously researched book on the domestic mechanical clocks made in England and Wales in the twentieth century a culmination of ten years research by the authors will be a key reference tool for horologists horological students collectors and clock and antiques dealers Superbly illustrated with 1016 colour photographs and period black and white illustrations

St Albans Sue Mann,Jonathan Mein,Anne Wares,2016-10-01 Much has been written about the men who left to fight in the First World War but what was life really like for those left behind on the Home Front A bustling market town profoundly touched by the war St Albans is the perfect place of which to ask this question thanks in part to the survival of exceptionally rich archives of records from the period In 1914 St Albans had a population of over 24 000 people Within days of the outbreak of war with all the emotion and upheaval that entailed the town also had to adjust to the arrival of more than 7 000 soldiers for whom billets needed to be found This book considers the social changes that took place as St Albans became a garrison town for the first time in centuries In the early decades of the twentieth century St Albans had a diverse economy Along with the established straw hat making factories and silk mills other light industry had been introduced more recently notably printing and clothing manufacture There was contrasting prosperity and poverty with slum housing conditions for many of the workers As taxes increased and the Army ceaselessly looked to recruit more men every enterprise fought to survive The registers and minutes of the St Albans Military Service Tribunal which unusually were not destroyed after the war allowed the authors to explore the conflicting needs of the military and local businesses From early 1916 the Tribunal heard applications from 1 050 men for exemption from conscription including 23 conscientious objectors As the war went on maintaining a regular and constant supply of food for the nation became ever more challenging Shortages and complaints about unfair distribution led to the introduction of rationing in 1918 and queues became a daily fact of life How was St Albans fed This book explores the immediate challenges the townspeople faced during the war as well as the longer term effects on the city When the war finally ended could life ever return to normal as some 3 000 soldiers returned home

London's Industrial Heritage Geoff Marshall,2013-03-01 Did you know that apart from Lancashire the greatest concentration of Boulton the world s first plastic material was synthesised in the East End there was even a gasworks opposite the Palace of Westminster Clerkenwell was a centre for watch and clock makers the River Thames used to be full of colliers bringing coal from Newcastle Joseph Bramah invented his water closet and hydraulic pump here and Henry Maudslay made machines to make machines Many household names began in London Schweppes Crosse Blackwell and Vauxhall motor cars The list of fascinating facts goes on In this the first book of its kind on the subject Geoff Marshall provides an enthralling overview of London s industrial face through history NAWCC Bulletin ,2008 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells,2004 The Log ,1946 Engineering ,1962 Proceedings of the IRE. Institute of Radio Engineers,1955 Proceedings of the IRE. ,1955 The Mariner's Chronometer W. J. Morris,2012-11-01 This book profusely illustrated in colour takes the non specialist reader through the detailed structure of the marine chronometer and explains its principles It then guides the reader through the disassembly cleaning oiling and reassembly of marine chronometers their rating and preparation for transport finishing with a substantial chapter on the evolution of the modern instrument Some prominence is given to early French horologists who are often neglected in English language texts There is no other book quite like it and as clockmakers with actual experience of working on chronometers become rarer this book will be of interest to collectors horologists curators and indeed anyone with an interest in the technology of time and navigation Mercer Chronometers Tony Mercer,1978 Chronometer Makers of the World Tony Mercer,1991 The Marine Chronometer Rupert Thomas Gould,1960 The Marine Chronometer Rupert Thomas Gould,1960 The Marine Chronometer Rupert T. Gould, Frank Watson Dyson,1976 The Marine Chronometer: Its History and Development Rupert T. Gould,1973 John Arnold & Son, Chronometer Makers, 1762-1843 Vaudrey Mercer,1972
