Restoring the Village, Values, and Commitment Jawanza Kunjufu, 1996 How can African Americans reduce their divorce rate of six percent What are the four stages of a relationship Can black families survive if the black can't find employment Could this be the first generation that does not exceed their parents in academic achievement This book answers those questions and also addresses the four stages of a relationship why African American females lead the world in teen pregnancy and why more fathers do not remain in the home with their children Making Space Lance Trevor McCready, 2002 This dissertation is an ethnographic study of Black gay male students who attend Berkeley High School BHS an urban high school in Northern California and investigates how race gender and sexuality affect their marginalization The primary question guiding the investigation is whether where how and with what consequences extracurricular activities marginalize Black gay male students at BHS The theoretical framework of the study builds upon the concept of marginalization introduced by Cathy Cohen's provocative book Boundaries of Blackness 1999 which examines institutional forms of marginalization in AIDS organizations and the Black press The impetus of this dissertation study was research on race and sex segregation in extracurricular activities conducted during the 1996-1997 academic year under the auspices of the Diversity Project a school-university collaborative action research project at BHS Subsequent ethnographic research was conducted on intersections of race gender and sexuality in two extracurricular activities Project 10 the social support group for queer students and the Afro-Haitian Dance Program AHDP which is part of one of the nation's only African American Studies Departments housed in a public high school Four Black gay male students serve as focal students in the data analysis Their experiences highlight how cross-cutting issues of race gender and sexuality marginalize Black gay male students within indigenous extracurricular activities that were established to serve the needs of queer students and Black students respectively Furthermore their experiences reflect how responses to marginalization attempts to make space in the institutional structure of BHS through subversive performances of identity The notion of making space reveals the sutured dynamics of multiple categories of identity and the dialectical relationship between the performance of identity and the structure of schools In conclusion queering the marginalization of Black male students helps us rethink the troubles facing Black males in urban schools and challenges us to develop intervention strategies that improve the educational outcomes of Black male students while simultaneously working to dismantle sexism and heterosexism

Mohamed,2006 Is black academic excellence a form of imitation of white values Bill Cosby repudiates the equation ALthough Bill Cosby s formulation of the issue could have been made less provocative he was indeed raising an important issue Has the achievement motive among African Americans been severely damaged by the history of enslavement and racism How can African Americans now transcend those inhibitions Foreword
