Dinosaurs, 2003 Peterson First Guide to Dinosaurs John C. Kricher, 1990-01-01 Introduces the names and characteristics of dinosaurs along with recent discoveries that shed new light on the way dinosaurs may have lived large groups then it might be reasonable to expect that they developed a heightened social awareness. In other words they would have developed some form of social structure a hierarchy or pecking order. They would have some form of communication to protect territory to signal if a predator threatened the herd to make other simple wants known and possibly for more complex purposes. It has also been discovered that more than one form of dinosaur nested in colonies. This is a not too surprising extension of the socialization of the herd. Along with these findings it has been determined that many dinosaurs built nests and that at least some of them tended the eggs in the nests and fed and protected the young after they hatched. Some hatchling hadrosaurs were completely helpless for weeks after hatching and someone likely the mother and or the father had to gather food for them and keep predators away from the nest. These were remarkable discoveries socializing nesting in colonies and parenting. Other findings are still being hotly debated although the general consensus is that dinosaurs were not stupid sluggish cold blooded and doomed to extinction. Were at least some dinosaurs warm blooded. Were many dinosaurs swift and alert. Dinosaurs survived for over 140 million years compared to a few million years for human like creatures and suppressed the development of mammals during that entire period. It was only after dinosaurs ceased to be that mammals inherited the earth. A hundred and forty million years is a long time so they were doing something right. A Field Guide to Western Trees George A. Petrides, 1998.
