The ink dropper is like the visual stimulus. The ink spreads only a little on the first sheet of paper, analogous to the small spread of neural activity in primary visual cortex, or "V1". The spread gets bigger as it soaks through to each successive sheet of paper (like the later visual brain areas, V2, V3, etc.)

Memory

Starts here →

In memory, there is no visual stimulus. Instead, you internally generate patterns of neuronal activity, probably starting at a later area, which then feeds back to earlier areas. The spot is about the same size in each area, differing from perception. The intensity of activation is also lower in memory, symbolized by the gray rather than black ink.

Attention, Perception and Memory Elizabeth Styles,2004-08-02 Although attention perception and memory are identifiable components of the human cognitive system this book argues that for a complete understanding of any of them it is necessary to appreciate the way they interact and depend on one another Using close examination of experiments studies of patients and evidence from cognitive neuroscience each of these important areas in cognitive psychology is explored in detail and related to its counterparts Written by an established author Attention Perception and Memory An Integrated Introduction explains clearly the evolution and meaning of key terminology and assumptions and puts the different approaches to this field in context

Perceptual Imagination and Perceptual Memory Fiona Macpherson,Fabian Dorsch,2018-05-24 In Perceptual Imagination and Perceptual Memory a group of distinguished contributors examine how perceptual imagination and memory resemble and differ from each other and from other kinds of sensory experience They question the role each plays in perception and in the acquisition of knowledge The collection discusses the epistemic roles that the imagination and memory play in our mental lives It pushes forward the debates about the nature of perceptual imagination and perceptual memory This innovative study will encourage future discussions on these interesting topics by students and scholars in the field This volume presents ten new essays on the nature of perceptual imagination and perceptual memory framed by an introductory overview of these topics How do perceptual imagination and memory resemble and differ from each other and from other kinds of sensory experience And what role does each play in perception and in the acquisition of knowledge These are the two central questions that the contributors seek to address

Cognitive Modeling in Perception and Memory J G W Raaijmakers,Robert Goldstone,Mark Steyvers,Amy Criss,Robert Nosofsky,2015-02-11 The work of Richard M Shiffrin has highly impacted the field of cognitive science and current developments within perception and memory have been influenced by his ideas In this volume several key figures in the field will comment on these developments and put them in a wider perspective Although many theories and models have been presented in recent years for various aspects of human cognition there have not been many comparative evaluations that focus on how these models have really advanced our understanding of the underlying mechanisms This volume will be a valuable source of information for both cognitive scientists working in the field and researchers and students looking for a clear accessible presentation of the key problems in cognitive science Highlighted sections include attention and perception memory functions and processes knowledge representation and semantics modelling approaches and applications

Brain, Perception, Memory Johan J. Bolhuis,2000 With contributions from Patrick Bateson Robert Hinde Eric Kandel and James McGaugh this is an authoritative and comprehensive overview of current knowledge of the essential neural mechanisms of perception learning and memory

Brain Mechanisms of Perception and Memory Taketoshi Ono,1993 Information about perception and memory is accumulating rapidly in both basic and clinical neuroscience and this progress has been made

using a variety of approaches while drawing jointly on the traditions of neuroanatomy neurophysiology and neuropsychology In order to disseminate research occurring in leading laboratories around the world an international symposium on Brain Mechanisms of Perception and Memory From Neuron to Behavior was held in Toyama Japan in October 1991 Planned in conjunction with this important meeting this volume presents the work of over 40 eminent scientists from around the world Their research covers many topics including such core issues as the perception of form perception of motion memory and the limbic system the neocortex and neural plasticity A prominent area of discussion at the symposium and one which figures prominently in this volume is work with nonhuman primates especially useful in the study of perception and memory The breadth of coverage of this volume in conjunction with its extensive studies of nonhuman primates makes this book a necessary reference for those interested in current perspectives on brain mechanisms of perception and memory Neuroscientists neuropsychologists cognitive and physiological psychologists will find this authoritative state of the art review important and informative reading

The Evolution of Memory Systems Elisabeth A. Murray, Steven P. Wise, Kim S. Graham, 2017 The Evolution of Memory Systems sets out a bold and exciting new theory about memory It proposes that several memory systems arose during evolution and that they did so for the same general reason to transcend problems and exploit opportunities encountered by specific ancestors at particular times and places in the distant past

Visual Memory Steven J. Luck, Andrew Hollingworth, 2008-09-10 Visual Memory presents a state of the art view of research on visual memory that both summarizes current knowledge and presents new perspectives It covers the major memory systems including iconic memory visual short term memory and visual long term memory with extensive links to eye movements scene processing object recognition and neural mechanisms

Person Memory (PLE: Memory) Reid Hastie, Thomas Ostrom, Ebbe Ebbesen, Robert Wyer, David Hamilton, Donal Carlston, 2014-05-09 Originally published in 1980 this title came about after many late night discussions between the authors during a 3 week workshop on Mathematical Approaches to Person Perception in 1974 In subsequent meetings a mutual interest emerged in the development of cognitive information processing metaphors for human thought and their application to problems of social perception memory and judgment Within the context of modern research on social cognition the most distinctive aspects of the authors work was its empirical focus on how people cognitively represent people in memory and its theoretical emphasis on models of cognitive organization and process They concluded that an adequate theory of social memory was the necessary foundation for solutions to many questions concerning social perception and judgment that had dominated the 1974 workshop This volume summarizes work conducted between 1974 and 1979 on social memory by these authors In addition to six chapters summarizing individual research programs the volume includes a general introduction and a concluding theoretical integration

Unconscious Memory Representations in Perception István Czigler, István

Winkler,2010-05-06 Perceptual experience emerges from neural computations Unconscious Memory Representations in Perception focuses on the role of implicit non conscious memories in processing sensory information Making sense of the wealth of information arriving at our senses requires implicit memories which represent environmental regularities contingencies of the sensory input as well as general contextual knowledge Recent findings and theories in cognitive and computational neuroscience provided new insights into the structure and contents of implicit memory representations The chapters of this book examine implicit memories both in relatively simple situations such as perceiving auditory and visual objects as well as in high level cognitive functions such as speech and music perception and aesthetic experience By nature implicit memories cannot be directly studied with behavioral methods Therefore a large part of the evidence reviewed was obtained in neuroscientific studies Readers with limited experience in neuroscience will find information about the most commonly used techniques in the appendix of this volume Series B The Forgetting Machine Rodrigo Quian

Zacks,2020-02-10 The representation of events is a central topic for cognitive science In this series of lectures Jeffrey M Zacks situates event representations and their role in language within a theory of perception and memory Event representations have a distinctive structure and format that result from computational and neural mechanisms operating during perception and language comprehension A crucial aspect of the mechanisms is that event representations are updated to optimize their predictive utility This updating has consequences for action control and for long term memory Event cognition changes across the adult lifespan and can be impaired by conditions including Alzheimer's disease These mechanisms have broad impact on everyday activity and have shaped the development of media such as cinema and narrative fiction
