Thesis
In November 1967, thousands of Philadelphia students organized a city-wide student demonstration demanding a culturally responsive curriculum and economic justice. A convergence of grassroots and regional influences culminated in a national event in Philadelphia that inspired the Black Political Power movement and other organizing movements.

STUDENT DEMANDS
The students demanded a curriculum that reflected the experiences of Black Americans and that addressed the needs of the Black community. They also demanded economic justice and the right to a decent education.

Conclusion
The 1967 Philadelphia student walkouts were a pivotal moment in the Black Political Power movement. They inspired other students across the country to demand a more culturally responsive and economically just education.

Black Political Power
The Black Political Power movement was a response to the Black Power movement. It focused on economic justice and the right to a decent education.
