Comparison of Posix Open System Environment (Ose) And Open Distributed Processing (Odp) Reference Models (Classic Reprint) Geraldina Fernandes, 2018-09-18 Excerpt from Comparison of Posix Open System Environment Ose And Open Distributed Processing ODP Reference Models Advances in technology giving increasing importance to information service networks and personal workstations are two factors which permit the construction of distributed applications running on a large set of interconnected systems With the increasing need to interconnect information processing systems distributed systems are becoming very important Organizations need to exchange information both inside the organization and between cooperating organizations Many organizations are becoming dependent on distributed computing systems When a distributed processing system stops providing the service required by its users an entire factory s production may stop a bank cannot conduct its normal transactions or an airline cannot make reservations Management of these heterogeneous software and hardware environments in order to supply and maintain the services required is one of the most difficult problems facing computer users today About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Information Technology - Open Distributed Processing - Reference Model, 2009 The Road to Open Distributed Processing (ODP) Kurt Geihs, 1990 A Type Management System for Open Distributed Processing Wayne Brookes, Jadwiga Indulska, 1994 Abstract A goal of Open Distributed Processing ODP is to allow the interconnection of existing heterogeneous systems and to support the introduction of new services at run time to allow for system evolution One of the greatest problems in achieving this goal is managing the heterogeneity of the environment The Reference Model of Open Distributed Processing RM ODP introduces a Type Repository function as a support for overcoming this problem by providing a framework for describing and relating the types of information services and entities in an open distributed system This report presents a brief overview of type description and type management in RM ODP and focuses on the development of a type model and strategies for type management for use in an open distributed environment It considers related approaches in object oriented databases persistent programming and distributed system architectures and evaluates them with respect to the requirements of ODP It further considers issues related to the construction of a Type Manager providing tools for type description and type management to operate in an open distributed environment

A Formal Approach to an Architecture for Open Distributed Processing Andreas Vogel, 1994 Abstract Open Distributed Processing ODP provides an open architecture for distributed systems ODP is subject to an ongoing international standardization by ISO and ITU T The formal description techniques LOTOS SDL Z and Mondel are investigated for their suitability to define ODPs architecture formally resulting in the selection of LOTOS The LOTOS sub language approach is introduced and developed This approach is based on the idea of mapping ODPs architectural concepts and structures on LOTOS templates and the relationships between them respectively A software engineering technology for tools supporting this approach is provided Information Technology - Open Distributed Processing - Interface Definition Language International Organization for Standardization, International Electrotechnical Commission, Organisation Internationale de Normalisation, 1999 Open Distributed Processing, II Jan de Meer, Bernd Mahr, Silke Storp, 1994 Concentrates on informatics in medicine covering topics such as trader trading distributed systems quality of multimedia services distributed applications and Open Distributed Processing design and modelling concepts
