

Table 1. A traditional approach versus Safe System approach to transportation safety*

| | Traditional Approach | Safe System Approach |
|------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Inherent problem or target? | Crashes | Fatalities and serious injuries |
| Causes of the problem? | Human behavior | Larger system of factors leading to the context and conditions in which the injury or fatality occurred |
| Who is responsible? | Individual road users | Agencies and organizations that create the system (e.g., policymakers, planners, engineers) |
| Underlying intervention approach? | Incremental, reactive treatment where crashes have occurred | Proactive, systemic approach to creating a safe road network and system |
| What is the safety goal? | An optimal reduction in fatalities and serious injuries based on previous trends | Zero fatalities and serious injuries is the only morally acceptable target |
