performances simultaneously inspired to some extent by Western dance theatre In doing so the book reveals how Taiwan s rapidly modernising and increasingly technologically advanced society has made such a radical turn towards the Eastern traditions of corporeality Ultimately it highlights the significance of contemplative art in the over aesthetised reality of our time and how dance serves as a vehicle for the transformation and renewal of human beings in a technocratic and technology driven world Featuring first hand findings from fieldwork with dance innovators and dance schools in Taiwan this book will appeal to students and scholars of Taiwanese culture theatre and dance as well as performance studies Practical poetry fiction nonfiction and ethnography Many include the visual or performing arts within their practice and all are academics as well as creative writers Their chapters move the study of creative writing beyond subjective accounts of how I write towards broader issues of how knowledge is addressed by or incorporated into or embodied in art Each chapter also does double duty as a case study on approaches to creative and research work both describing and critically exploring the strategies or creative manoeuvres these writers have adopted to advance their practice in both creative and critical domains In this way the book not only exemplifies moves in the contemporary academy to understand better the value creative practice can offer to the university but also provides a rich and engaging set of narratives about ways of being ways of making and ways of coming to know In both practical and theoretical modes it contributes to the ongoing questions about creativity and versus scholarship that have been debated over recent decades
