Kinney, 2004-10-13 Co Winner of the 2005 Hagley Business History Book Prize given by the Business History Conference In 1926 the Carriage Builders National Association met for the last time signaling the automobile s final triumph over the horse drawn carriage Only a decade earlier carriages and wagons were still a common sight on every Main Street in America In the previous century carriage building had been one of the largest and most dynamic industries in the country In this sweeping study of a forgotten trade Thomas A Kinney extends our understanding of nineteenth century American industrialization far beyond the steel mill and railroad The legendary Studebaker Brothers Manufacturing Company in 1880 produced a hundred wagons a day one every six minutes Across the country smaller factories fashioned vast quantities of buggies farm wagons and luxury carriages Today if we think of carriage and wagon at all we assume it merely foreshadowed the automobile industry Yet the carriage industry epitomized a batch work approach to production that flourished for decades Contradicting the model of industrial development in which hand tools small firms and individual craftsmanship simply gave way to mechanized factories the carriage industry successfully employed small scale business and manufacturing practices throughout its history The Carriage Trade traces the rise and fall of this heterogeneous industry from the pre industrial shop system to the coming of the automobile using as case studies Studebaker the New York based luxury carriage maker Brewsters and dozens of smaller firms from around the country Kinney also explores the experiences of the carriage and wagon worker over the life of the industry Deeply researched and strikingly original this study contributes a vivid chapter to the story of America s industrial revolution
