

My Children My Africa

Character Analysis

Mr. M (Anela Myalaty): Mr. M is a 57 year-old black teacher at Zolile High School. As a bachelor, Mr. M lives in the small back room of the local reverend's house. He lives a very simple life that revolves around intellect and education; his greatest hope is to keep young people at their desks. Mr. M is also a Confucian (one of the few that are black); he adores the words of Confucius, from which he builds his classroom motto.

Isabel Dyson: Isabel Dyson is a white girl that visits Zolile High School in Brakwater during an interschool debate. She is the "outsider that was being asked to prove herself." Stepping up to the challenge, Isabel becomes very comfortable and becomes very involved in debate in Brakwater. A very witty and intelligent young woman, Isabel comes to face reality of South Africa through her connections to Thami and Mr. M.

Thami Mbikwana: Thami is a black boy who attends Zolile High School who has been a student of Mr. M for a very long time. Thami shows extraordinary promise and is a very smart student. Affected by the long-standing apartheid in South Africa, Thami contemplates and debates his future throughout the play. The focal point of the play and slightly idealized by the other two characters, Thami's words and decisions have a large effect on the way that the play unfolds.

Mr. M as a Confucian: K'ung Ch'iu, or Confucius, was born in 551 B.C in the small Chinese town of T'ou during the Chou dynasty (c. 1100-221 B.C.). Ruling over such a vast amount of land became difficult, however, and the country broke up into individual states and made feudalism an idea of the past. Rulers of the new states were educated but corrupt aristocrats who used war as a means to gain the spoils and pleasures they wanted. The aristocrats ignored the suffering of the poverty-stricken people, which caused extreme social differences between the classes. The people were struggling under the new form of government, and they wanted a new direction and purpose in their lives.

Confucius grew up during this transfer of power. While he was a descendant from an aristocrat, Confucius grew up in an impoverished family, and viewed the world with a "practical perspective". Confucius was three when his father died, and his mother had to take on multiple jobs in order to support the family. By the time he was 15, he had decided to devote himself to education while working various jobs such as a book-keeper, shepherd, cowherd, and clerk. He began traveling to different parts of the country, giving advice to the different leaders. During this time he developed a group of followers. His teachings include righteousness, honesty, trust, love within a family, and loyalty to the state. These beliefs became known as Confucianism, and is now followed and sometimes recognized as a Religion.

In "My Children! My Africa!" Mr. M says that Confucius is his teacher. Indeed, Mr. M and Confucius share many key ideas. They both believe very strongly in the power of education, and the importance of morality as a part of the government. Mr. M tries to use education to show the children how they are being suppressed by the government.
