Nuclear Disarmament In The Twentyfirst Century:

Nuclear Disarmament in the Twenty-first Century Wade L. Huntley, Mitsuru Kurosawa, Kazumi Mizumoto, 2005-03-06 This work provides a comprehensive examination of the current state and future prospects for nuclear disarmament at the turn of the century The work juxtaposes a sober review of progress made during the last decade with a proactive agenda of proposals for new disarmament initiatives in the next decade Taken together the contributions to this volume suggest that contrary to current conventional wisdom the increasing global cache of nuclear weapons and the waning progress on nuclear disarmament of recent years need not become the defining features of the post Cold War era Rather by examining the new conditions that have emerged at the dawn of the of the 21st century through both national and issue based perspectives this work reveals how the likelihood of continuing uncertainty and change in world affairs creates opportunities as well as the need for renewed progress toward significant nuclear disarmament UNODA Occasional Papers No. 28, October 2016 United Nations Publications, 2016-12-05 The United Nations Office for Disarmament Affairs UNODA Occasional Papers is a series of ad hoc publications presenting in edited form papers or statements made at meetings symposiums seminars workshops or lectures that deal with topical issues in the field of arms limitation disarmament and international security They are intended primarily for those concerned with these matters in Government civil society and in the academic community This publication s authors who include some of the world s leading scholars diplomats and activists on the topic examine historic strategic humanitarian and economic aspects of general and complete disarmament to elaborate and elevate the case for prohibiting conventional weapons systems as well as nuclear weapons The featured articles were originally presented at the seminar held at the United Nations Headquarters in New York on 21 October 2015 entitled Comprehensive Approaches for Disarmament in the Twenty first Century Rethinking General and Complete Disarmament It was organized by the Centre for International Studies and Diplomacy at at the School of Oriental and African Studies University of London and sponsored by the Permanent Mission of Costa Rica Deterrence in the Twenty-first Century Max G. Manwaring, 2013-02-01 This anthology argues that facing the diverse threats in the new world disorder requires a new look and new approaches The requirement is to establish that contemporary deterrence demands replacing the old nuclear theology with new policy and strategy to deal with the myriad state non state and trans national nuclear and non nuclear menaces that have heretofore been ignored or wished away Slaying the Nuclear Dragon Tanya Ogilvie-White, David Santoro, 2012 In recent decades the debate on nuclear weapons has focused overwhelmingly on proliferation and nonproliferation dynamics In a series of Wall Street Journal articles however George Shultz William Perry Henry Kissinger and Sam Nunn called on governments to rid the world of nuclear weapons helping to put disarmament back into international security discussions More recently U S president Barack Obama prominent U S congressional members of both political parties and a number of influential foreign leaders have espoused the idea of a world free of nuclear weapons Turning this vision into reality requires an understanding of the forces driving disarmament forward and those holding it back Slaying the Nuclear Dragon provides in depth objective analysis of current nuclear disarmament dynamics Examining the political state level factors that drive and stall progress contributors highlight the challenges and opportunities faced by proponents of disarmament These essays show that although conditions are favorable for significant reductions numerous hurdles still exist Contributors look at three categories of states those that generate momentum for disarmament those with policies that are problematic for disarmament and those that actively hinder progress whether openly secretly deliberately or inadvertently Nuclear deterrence was long credited with preventing war between the two major Cold War powers but with the spread of nuclear technology threats have shifted to other state powers and to nonstate groups Slaying the Nuclear Dragon addresses an urgent need to examine nuclear disarmament in a realistic nonideological manner

Nuclear Ethics in the Twenty-First Century Thomas E. Doyle, II, 2020-01-31 This book relates a complex ethical re assessment of the continued reliance by some states on nuclear weapons as instruments of state power This re assessment is more urgent considering the relatively recent intensification of great power conflict dynamics and the nuclear weapon states recommitments to modernizing augmenting or tailoring their nuclear forces to address vital state and alliance interests And especially since the beginning of the administration of U S President Donald J Trump these recommitments have accelerated the degree to which the political and moral dilemmas of the threat of nuclear use define and intensify existential risks for specific states and the international community at large To execute this re assessment this book details how strategic political legal and moral reasoning are deeply intertwined on the questions of vital state and global values Its ontological assumptions are taken from a broadly construed IR Constructivist stance and its epistemological approach applies non ideal moral principles informed by Kantian thought to selected problems of nuclear armed security competition as they evolved since President Barack Obama s 2009 Prague Declaration This non ideal moral approach employed is committed to the view that the dual imperatives of humanity s survival and the common security of states requires an international order which privileges considerations of justice over power political considerations This non ideal moral approach is a necessary element of theorizing a set of practices to effectively address the challenges and dilemmas of reordering international politics in terms of justice

Nuclear Proliferation and the Dilemma of Peace in the Twenty-First Century David A. Valone, 2010-02-19 On September 27 2007 Quinnipiac University and the Albert Schweitzer Institute hosted former US President Jimmy Carter and several internationally known experts at a forum to discuss nuclear disarmament This book includes papers and transcripts of talks delivered at that conference It contains the transcript of President Carter s keynote address in which he discusses his experiences in the White House when he and Soviet premier Leonid Brezhnev tangled over the size of their respective nuclear arsenals Carter relates I knew the entire time I was president that 26 minutes after we detected the launching of an intercontinental ballistic missile that that missile would strike Washington DC or New York or any other target that the Soviets had chosen This imminent nuclear threat Carter notes strengthened his commitment to peace after he left the White House the very first conference he scheduled at the Carter Center in Atlanta was on nuclear disarmament Other papers include talks by Jonathan Granoff President of the Global Security Institute who discusses the collective denial that the world seems to have toward nuclear weapons Ira Helfand who describes the physical medical and biological impacts of a massive nuclear explosion should such a disaster occur in or near an urban center Hirotsami Yamada offers a heart wrenching account of how as a boy he survived the atomic bomb blast in his hometown of Nagasaki in August 1945 while the rest of his family perished Dr Neil Araya of the Nobel Peace Prize winning International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War discusses the connection between public health and nuclear weapons Other papers consider historical philosophical linguistic and educational issues related to nuclear weapons and the ongoing struggle for peace

The Nuclear Predicament Peter R. Beckman,1999 Ideal for use in all Nuclear Issues American Foreign Policy International Relations Global Issues and Contemporary History courses at the undergraduate level Thoroughly revised to reflect the changes that the end of the cold war has brought to nuclear issues and to examine our new nuclear future this interdisciplinary text shows how nuclear weapons have changed the world militarily politically socially and ethically Seeking to shake readers out of their nuclear complacency it fully examines the evolving nuclear predicament that nuclear weapons can be massively destructive yet we are moving into a period when nuclear weapons are more likely to be used and considers particular strategies to cope with and shape the nuclear future

Sustainable Peace in the Twenty-First Century Dilip Vasudeo Kulkarni,2017-02-22 This book questions current approaches to international conflict mediation and peacebuilding highlighting the need for reform to address social inequality based conflicts It uses contributors experiences to illustrate challenges and aims to foster understanding and collaboration for sustainable global peace

A Disarmament Agenda for the Twenty-first Century ,2002

Rethinking the Bomb Marc-Michael Blum,2013-04-29 This PDF can be downloaded for free from <http://martenscentre.eu/publications/rethinking-bomb-europe-and-nuclear-weapons-twenty-first-century> The question of what Europe's nuclear strategy should be is rarely discussed While Europe continues to play a crucial role on issues relating to non proliferation particularly in negotiations with Iran over its nuclear programme nuclear strategy is generally considered to be within remit of Russia the United States and NATO The paper identifies possible scenarios where the deployment of nuclear weapons may be justified It also examines the use of tactical nuclear weapons traditional means of arms control and the implications of a nuclear Iran The author establishes a compelling case for the immediate development of a coherent European nuclear strategy This strategy should take into account the role of nuclear weapons in maintaining peace and security in modern Europe While conceding that during periods of financial and political crisis dialogue may not be considered a priority the author maintains that it is essential in order to limit the risk of proliferation or the use of nuclear weapons

Global Security in the Twenty-first Century Sean Kay,2006-02-13 Kay integrates traditional and emerging challenges in one study that gives readers the tools they need to develop a thoughtful and nuanced understanding of global security BOOK JACKET Energy Issues in Asia for the Twenty-first Century Ryūichi Imai,1997 House of Commons - Defence Committee: Deterrence in the Twenty-First Century - HC 1066 Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Defence Committee,James Arbuthnot,2014-03-27 The MoD s financial settlement in the next Comprehensive Spending Review must be made in the light of the need to retain a credible deterrent capacity in the country s Armed Forces The Committee welcomes the emphasis that the Government places on the importance of cyber defence and the commitment of resources to a new cyber strike capability But the difficulty in identifying actors in a cyber attack makes the ability to deter that much harder Similar questions arise in deterrence against the asymmetrical threat of terrorism as it is difficult to identify interests and groups against which a response can be legitimately targeted The Committee is calling on the MoD to set out how it can make clear that both cyber and terrorist attack will elicit an appropriate and determined response Looking at the nuclear deterrent the Committee points out that the UK s ability to effect a nuclear response is not credible in dealing with all threats and so strong conventional deterrence is also required And given the importance of communication to the concept of deterrence investment in diplomatic and intelligence assets must be integral to the UK s security apparatus The Committee concludes that it would be naive to assume that a decision not to invest in the nuclear deterrent would release substantial funds for investment in other forms of security The Committee believes that the decision on the retention of the nuclear deterrent should be made on its own merits

Deterrence in the Twenty-first Century Anthony Christopher Cain,2010 Sponsored by the Air Force Research Institute AFRI and the Royal United Services Institute the conference was held in London on 18 19 May 2009 and focused on deterrence to help understand and begin to develop policy frameworks that fit the current and emerging security context Assembling some of the best minds on deterrence the conference afforded speakers an opportunity to invigorate this essential tool for today s policy community In addition the conference included two preconference thought pieces and two quick looks by AFRI personnel AU Press web site Towards a Secure World in the Twenty-first Century Joseph Rotblat,1990 Deterrence and Nuclear Proliferation in the Twenty-First Century Stephen J. Cimbala,2001 Annotation This edited collection offers a prognosis about the role of nuclear weapons and nuclear arms control in future U S defense and other international security policy The proliferation of nuclear weapons is closely related to other security issues including the spread of chemical and biological weapons and the availability of ballistic missiles to dissatisfied state actors Formerly the weapons of choice that defined great power status nuclear forces after the end of the Cold War may be the preferred weapons by which the weak checkmate the strong Social Problems for the Twenty-first Century J. John Palen,2001 This contemporary text reflects the concerns and problems of the new century and the new millennium It presents the latest sociological data knowledge and opinions as accurately and as fairly as possible so that any instructor regardless of his or her theoretical orientation will have a trustworthy base from which to elaborate disagree or discuss This text builds on students natural interest in social problems and encourages them to develop both a sociological perspective and a sociological imagination that allows them to examine social problems in a critical fashion

Terrorism in the Twenty-first Century
Cindy C. Combs, 2000 For undergraduate level courses in Political Violence Terrorism and Criminal Justice Unbiased in perspective this text 1 examines the known facets of contemporary terrorism explaining what terrorism is who carries it out how terrorist acts are committed 2 analyzes the laws and special forces which nations within the international community have created to meet this challenge and 3 predicts forthcoming patterns of terrorism in the new century Post Cold War in focus and written specifically for undergraduate students it helps them evaluate the dimensions of the problems presented by contemporary terrorism and challenges them to develop solutions

Toward the Twenty-first Century Glenn P. Hastedt, Kay M. Knickrehm, 1994 A collection of 48 articles designed to get students to think about what international relations will look like in ten years
