worldwide has been explored and re-represented through comics and how history is a complex construction of imagination, reality, and manipulation. Through a close analysis of such works as V for Vendetta, Maus, and Persepolis, this volume contends that comics are a form of mediation between sources both primary and secondary and the reader. Historical comics are not drawn from memory but offer a nonliteral interpretation of an object re-constructed in the creator's mind. Indeed, when it comes to history, stretching the limits of the imagination only serves to aid in our understanding of the past and through that understanding, shape ourselves and our futures. This volume, the second in a two-volume series, is divided into three sections: History and Form, Historical Trauma, and Mythic Histories. The first section considers the relationship between history and the comic book form. The second section engages academic scholarship on comics that has recurring interest in the representation of war and trauma. The final section looks at mythic histories that consciously play with events that did not occur but nonetheless inflect our understanding of history. Contributors to the volume also explore questions of diversity and relationality, addressing differences between nations and the cultural, historical, and economic threads that bind them together, however loosely, and however much those bonds might chafe. Together, both volumes bring together a range of different approaches to diverse material and feature remarkable scholars from all over the world.

Requiem For A Vampire Larry L. Deibert, 2021-03-06. Chained to a wall in an abandoned warehouse, twenty-one-year-old Elise Stanhope, the daughter of a minister, becomes a vampire. Her creator, Marcus Bronson, lies dead on the floor, his head severed from his body. Elise breaks her bonds and seeks her first victim. With his blood, she gathers the strength she will need to begin her new life. She reads Marcus's journals and finds out many things he once known as Marcellus Bratius learned in his two thousand years as an immortal. One hundred and twenty-five years later, in 1965, she falls in love with David Forrester. Though she longs for a mate, she cannot bring herself to subject him to a life of vampirism. Elise hypnotizes him to forget her and leaves the area, but David eventually remembers everything and vows to hunt her down and destroy her. Near the end of the second millennium, Kathleen Hammond, a reporter for the Morning Call, goes to the scene of a death. The stone-white corpse of Jason Weber alerts her to the fact that a vampire may really exist. With the help of David and several other believers, they unite to hunt Elise and face her in a final battle of good versus evil.
