The Making of a Stockbroker

By EDWIN LEFÈVRE

Author of "The Reminiscences of a Stock Operator," etc.

Q In his own words, Mr. Lefèvre has set out to write "the story of a brokerage house from its founding to the present day." And with his sense for vivid narrative he has chosen the most dramatic form of presentation possible. He tells his story from the angle of one man's experience, a man who, under another name, is recognized as a powerful figure in New York's "downtown."

Q It was the "John Kent Wing" of this story, a representative of the best type of conservative Wall Street broker, who suggested to the author that he write this book. "Nobody," he says, "writes about the stockbroker of the vintage of 1924. It is always of the Jay Gould era. We do not tolerate practices that were common a few years ago, but nobody seems to believe it. Every swindler who happens to operate anywhere near Trinity Church is represented as being a typical Wall Street man. I wish you would write about the stockbroker of today."

Q Mr. Lefèvre has complied with the request. His new tale of the romance of money deals with the preservation of the honor and integrity of a great house through many adventures of the Street.
