

On this basis, if the healthcare organisation has only one percent of bandwidth available to Active Directory replication, using a 28.8 Kbps link between locations where DCs reside, it can still support up to 10,000 users in a single domain.

It is recommended that, once the number of domains has been defined, it should be documented using the Identifying Regions job aid document, named DSSLOG1_4.doc (R19). Table 8 provides an example of a simple record of the design decisions made, taking into account the recommendation of a single domain Active Directory forest for the healthcare organisation.

Name of Region	Slow Link	# of Users	Comment
Healthcare Organisation	56 Kbps	5,000	A single forest with a single domain and 1% bandwidth allocation for Active Directory

Table 8: Example Completed Job Aid for the Number of Domains

6.1.3.3 Determine Whether to Upgrade Existing or Deploy New Domains

This Active Directory guidance is focused on providing guidance for new installations. Specific healthcare guidance on upgrading Windows NT 4.0 and Windows 2000 domains, as well as migrating from Novell NetWare, is provided in the Active Directory Migration Guide (R18), and includes the following scenarios:

- Migrating from Windows NT 4.0 domains to Windows Server 2003 Active Directory
- Migrating from Windows 2000 domains to Windows Server 2003 domains
- Migrating from Novell NetWare to Windows Server 2003 Active Directory

6.1.3.4 Assign Domain Names

DNS and NetBIOS names for each domain must be determined and assigned. It is recommended that this is done using the Domain Planning job aid, named DSSLOG1_5.doc (R19).

Recommendations

The recommended naming standards guidance shown in section 6.1.7 should be followed when determining any domain names.

It is advised that the Active Directory domain name follows the naming convention of the healthcare organisation for which it is being deployed and is prefixed with the letters 'HQ' to easily identify the name as being associated with the Active Directory implementation.

6.1.3.5 Select the Forest Root Domain

Once the domain model has been determined, it is necessary to select the domain which will act as the forest root domain. This involves determining whether one of the Active Directory domains in the domain design can function as the forest root domain, or whether it is necessary to deploy a dedicated forest root domain.

Recommendation

A single domain Active Directory forest for the production environment should be implemented at the top level of a healthcare organisation, forming the simplest design, whereby the single domain acts as the forest root domain.

The forest root domain name is also the name of the forest. The forest root name is a DNS name that consists of a prefix and a suffix, in the form of prefix.suffix. Creating a new namespace for Active Directory ensures that any existing DNS infrastructure does not need to be modified to accommodate Active Directory.

Recommendation

The recommended naming standards guidance given in section 6.1.7 should be followed when determining any domain names.
